November, 2019

Hello Mustangers!

The Dick Doria Door County Fall Color Road Trip was great! Man, we had rain on the way up, but fortunately it subsided by the time we got to Susie's for her famous family style lunch. She does a wonderful job for our group! Saturday was a beautiful day to cruise the peninsula. Fall colors were darn near peak. Everyone had more good food when we went to the Nightingale Supper Club Saturday night. Thank you, Dave and Patti Hartley, for doing all the leg work running the event. A thanks to Roger for leading the herd north to Sturgeon Bay! Remember to mark your calendars for next years cruise on October 2nd, 3rd & 4th.

Next month our Annual Planning Meeting will be held at Joe's "K" Ranch in Cudahy on Monday, November 25th. The meeting will begin at 6:30PM. If you would like to host an event, please bring it up at this meeting. We are always looking to go to new places on a road trip. For more details, refer to the flier inside the newsletter.

One final note: Our car Show Planning Meeting will be on Saturday, December 7th, 1:30pm at WaterStone bank. If you are interested in joining our car show crew, we would be honored to have you join us. We are still open for suggestions for next year's show theme. Simply drop in on our meeting as we begin plans for our 2020 car show.

Please remember there is NO December meeting.

See you on the road!

Glenn

Tips For Winter Car Storage

Wash & Wax: It may seem fruitless to wash the car when it is about to be put away for months, but it is an easy step that shouldn't be overlooked. Water stains or bird droppings left on the car can permanently damage the paint. Make sure to clean the wheels and undersides of the fenders to get rid of mud, grease and tar. For added protection, give the car a coat of wax and treat any interior leather with a good conditioner.

Car Cover: Even though your classic is stored in the garage in semi-stable temperatures and protected from the elements, a car cover will keep any spills or dust off of the paint. It can also protect from scratches while moving objects around the parked car.

Change The Oil: If you will be storing the vehicle for longer than 30 days, consider getting the oil changed. Used engine oil has contaminants that could damage the engine or lead to sludge buildup. (And if your transmission fluid is due for a change, do it now too. When spring rolls around, you'll be happy you did.)

Fuel Tank: Before any extended storage period, remember to fill the gas tank to prevent moisture from accumulating inside the fuel tank and to keep the seals from drying out. You should also pour in fuel stabilizer to prevent buildup and protect the engine from gum, varnish and rust. This is especially critical in modern gasoline blended with ethanol, which gums up more easily. The fuel stabilizer will prevent the gas from deteriorating for up to 12 months.

Radiator: This is another area where fresh fluids will help prevent contaminants from slowly wearing down engine parts. If it's time to flush the radiator fluid, doing it before winter storage is a good idea. Whether or not you put in new antifreeze, check your freezing point with a hydrometer or test strips to make sure you're good for the lowest of winter temperatures.

Battery: An unattended battery will slowly lose its charge and eventually go bad, resulting in having to purchase a new battery in the spring. The easiest, low-tech solution is to disconnect the battery cables—the negative (ground) first, then the positive. You'll likely lose any stereo presets, time, and other settings. If you want to keep those settings and ensure that your battery starts the moment you return, purchase a trickle charger. This device hooks up to your car battery on one end, then plugs into a wall outlet on the other and delivers just enough electrical power to keep the battery topped up. Warning: Do not use a trickle charger if you're storing your car off property. In rare cases they've been known to spark a fire.

Parking Brake: For general driving use it is a good idea to use the parking brake, but don't do it when you leave a car in storage long term; if the brake pads make contact with the rotors for an extended period of time, they could fuse together. Instead of risking your emergency brake, purchase a tire chock or two to prevent the car from moving.

Tire Care: If a vehicle is left stationary for too long, the tires could develop flat spots from the weight of the vehicle pressing down on the tires' treads. This occurs at a faster rate in colder temperatures, especially with high-performance or low-profile tires, and in severe cases a flat spot becomes a permanent part of the tire, causing a need for replacement. If your car will be in storage for more than 30 days, consider taking off the wheels and placing the car on jack stands at all four corners. With that said, some argue that this procedure isn't good for the suspension, and there's always this consideration: If there's a fire, you have no way to save your car.

Repel Rodents: If you don't want to go through the hassle of jack stands, overinflate your tires slightly (2–5 pounds) to account for any air loss while it hibernates, and make sure the tires are on plywood, not in direct contact with the floor. A solid garage will keep your car dry and relatively warm, conditions that can also attract unwanted rodents during the cold winter months. There are plenty of places in your car for critters to hide and even more things for them to destroy. Prevent them from entering your car by covering any gaps where a mouse could enter, such as the exhaust pipe or an air intake; steel wool works well for this. Next, spread scented dryer sheets or Irish Spring soap shavings inside the car and moth balls around the perimeter of the vehicle. For a more proactive approach, also lay down a few mouse traps (although you'll need to check regularly for casualties).

Maintain Insurance: In order to save money, you might be tempted to cancel your auto insurance when your vehicle is in storage. Bad idea. If you remove coverage completely, you'll be on your own if there's a fire, the weight of snow collapses the roof, or your car is stolen. If you have classic car insurance, the policy covers a full year and takes winter storage into account in your annual premium.
